EXTRA SPECIALS FOR FRIDAY.

Almost every item in this advertis ment has been pushed over the precipic by the ruthless hand of the price pruner rooms and reading novels or "doing fancy work." One member described pathetically the difficulty he had in inducing any of the twenty-five to thump a typewriter for him. But there can be no doubt that the Montana House has a more ornamental staff of clerks than any other legislative body in the world. It should be proud of this distinction and not expect too much from its clerks. Perhaps they really do more work than some mean old things in the House are willing to admit.
